It's A Case of "In One End and Out the Other!"

Thirsty Terrace beer drinkers queued up in front of the Government Liquor Store Wednesday morning after hearing rumors of a beer delivery which proved true when employees unloaded a truckload of Schlitz and Olympia. A total of 2,960 dozen cases were sold during the day until just shortly before 4:30 when the supply ran out. Customers were limited to two dozen cans each, but it appeared that many were returning to the store for seconds. Liquor store employees are uncertain when the next shipment will be in because of the lengthy beer strike still continuing in the province that shows no signs of being resolved.

CUPW Warns of

September Postal Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) withdrew Wednesday from conciliation talks with the post office and warned that a national postal strike could be called as early as mid-September.

Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the 23,000-member union, announced the decision at a news conference where he accused the post office of bargaining delays and attempts to cut away rights the insiders already have.

"It is obvious that the employer will not be prepared to negotiate until we acquire our right to strike," Parrot said in a prepared statement.

"We're going to have a strike to get them to negotiate seriously," he told reporters.

Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne refused to comment as he left a cabinet meeting but an aide said "his initial reaction was that he was deceived ... he is disappointed."

Parrot made the announcement after giving the conciliation board the required seven-day notice to end conciliation which began almost a month ago. These private talks followed a record 32-days of public conciliation hearings.

NO TALKS

Parrot said no bargaining would take place during the seven days although union officials would be available to clarify their position.

The conciliators then would write a report. The union will be in a legal position to strike seven days after the report is given to the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

"We're talking at least a month before we acquire the right to strike," Parrot said. Although the conciliation board might set a foundation for a contract settlement, Parrot said it appeared a strike would be necessary.

In a letter to conciliation board chairman Louis Courtemanche, Parrot said the talks are in a deadlock, the post office is not bargaining in good faith and the union has been ridiculed.

The post office had made no counter proposals on major issues including technological change, use of casual labor, organization of work, grievance procedure and abuse of disciplinary power.

"It is therefore, impossible to hope to bring the parties together at this stage of conciliation and we cannot lead our members to believe that a settlement is possible between the parties under the circumstances," the letter said.

The last contract, settled following a 42-day postal strike in 1975—the longest in the country's history—expired in June, 1977.

HEU Threatens to Close All 120 Hospitals in BC

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Hospital Employees Union (HEU) spokesman said Tuesday there will be an industry-wide shutdown if the British Columbia Supreme Court overturns a binding contract award for 20,000 workers at 120 hospitals in the province.

Bill Third said if the court rules against the award, "the employees will go out."

"It will effectively shut down the whole industry," he said.

"This is more serious than the VGH (Vancouver General Hospital) situation. We have 20,000 members who have a stake in this."

HEU members held an hour-long sit-in Tuesday at Mount St. Joseph Hospital here to protest a challenge of arbitrator Allan Hope's July 28 award by the Health Labor Relations Association (HLRA), bargaining agents for the hospitals.

"We're not condoning these sit-ins, they are spontaneous—carried out by the employees themselves," Third said.

The walkout at the hospital ended when the administration agreed to pay a four-per-cent wage increase included in the contract.

MEMBERS DON'T KNOW Other HEU members do not know when they will get their pay increases, said Third. HLRA has ordered the hospitals it represents not to pay any increases until after the court hearing on Aug. 24, he said.

HLRA spokesmen would not comment Tuesday on why they agreed to pay the wage increase at Mount St. Joseph.

Rosemary Webber, the hospital's public relations coordinator, said non-medical staff sat down for one hour throughout the 300-bed private hospital, but nursing staff continued to work through the disruption.

The demonstration ended when employees were told HLRA had instructed the hospital Friday to pay a four-per-cent pay increase, retroactive to Jan. 1.

HLRA has petitioned the court for a declaration that the July 28 award, the first under the Essential Services Disputes Act, is invalid and that it be set aside.

Third said the three-year contract gave a four-per-cent wage increase in the first year retroactive to Jan. 1, 1978, seven per cent in the second year and a provision to renegotiate wage increases in the third year.

Base rates for HEU employees average about $7 an hour.

Trudeau Deplores the "Games Premiers Play"

Trudeau, who attended the exhibition's celebration of its 100th anniversary to open the federal government's pavilion, Our Canada—Chez Nous, also addressed the issues of inflation, government spending, economic growth and constitutional reform.

He said there was a sense of emergency in inflation statistics released this week.

Figures released by Statistics Canada show the 12-month inflation rate in July was 9.8 per cent, up from 9.2 per cent in June.

Trudeau said the July cost-of-living figures were distressingly high but that 80 per cent of it was due to the cost of food.

Defending the anti-inflation board, Trudeau said wage-and-price controls were introduced in October, 1975, because of high domestic inflation, but that now "we've brought down inflationary pressures in Canada."

He said the board should not be faulted for high prices on the world market. Domestic inflation is being held at about six per cent and the government must make sure it does not rise.

REDUCE EXPENDITURES

The government still aims to keep the economy's real growth rate at five per cent and the cabinet is discussing sizable reductions in expenditures and continuing measures to encourage growth in the private sector, he said.

Trudeau said he was sad to see what he described as the games played at the premiers' conference, and he does not want to see the premiers "play Levesque's game, falling into his trap of slowing everything down."

There are deadlines to be met because the people of Quebec must decide whether they will remain in Confederation, Trudeau said.

He said investors are wary about putting their money into a country with an uncertain future.

Trudeau also said his move to make the post office a Crown corporation was not intended as a magic solution, but would give management and labor a new start in which they might renege on some of the hard-line positions they have taken in the past.

He said a similar move by the British government 10 years ago brought the post office out of the red and into the black.

On the subject of unemployment, Trudeau said young people who are too choosy will not get jobs. He added the cabinet is looking into ways of rooting out those who collect unemployment insurance benefits without honestly looking for work.

LATE NEWS:

OTTAWA (CP) — The government renewed its pledge Wednesday to cut federal spending during the Returning to Terrace for an overnight visit, Wednesday, for the first time since he was stationed here with the Canadian Army in 1942, Bob Campbell above of Box 208 Clinton, Ontario, found the town a little changed.

Terrace was then a hamlet of 315-320 people, with 1 hotel, a small drug and gift shop, a liquor store across street from drug store, 1 general store on Kalum St., 1 hardware store, a station hotel and a "7 come 11" restaurant.

Accompanied by his camera-shy wife, Bob was heading for Prince Rupert and the ferry south.

He would welcome hearing from any oldtimers who might have lived here then.

Bob has pictures of the tent city of Terrace, which held some 2,500 Canadian servicemen - some volunteer - and others reluctant ones.

Andras Announces $2.5 Billion Spending Cutbacks next two years, but said it will not reduce payments to senior citizens or war veterans.

Cost-cutting measures announced following a cabinet meeting by Robert Andras, minister in charge of the treasury, total .5 billion. He promised a future announcement of further cuts that will bring the total to at least $2.5 billion in the period to March, 1980—more than the $2 billion promised by Prime Minister Trudeau in an Aug. economic statement.

Trudeau said the savings from cuts in present programs will be reallocated to help generate jobs.

Andras listed examples of cuts that he said will extend through virtually every department and agency, including the possible elimination of up to 5,000 of the more than 300,000 civilian federal jobs.

Housing, foreign aid, the CBC, the armed forces and health and welfare are among programs listed for cuts in the first of a promised series of announcements.

SAYS CUTS REAL

"When I talk about cutting planned expenditures," Andras said, "I am not talking about wiping out imaginary new programs. I am talking about cutting back on real programs and existing levels of service to the people of Canada."

But he added "we will not touch ... payments and services to our senior citizens and veterans, and to many unfortunate Canadians who are least able to protect themselves against inflation and economic hardship."

The budget of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), the main foreign-aid agency, is to be frozen at this year's $1.04 billion, wiping out 33 million in what

Andras described as "previously-committed expenditures."

The CBC budget is to be frozen at its current $522 million, which Andras said would cut $71 million off the planned future expenditures of the Crown corporation.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC), another Crown agency, will have $388 million lopped off its budget during the next two years. The federal housing agency's budget this year was $3 billion.

Polio Update

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All available supplies of polio vaccine in Ontario have been re-routed into the southwestern Ontario area where six cases of polio have been confirmed, an Ontario medical health officer said Wednesday.

Dr. Michael Fisher of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties health unit said the province has about 600,000 doses of tetanus-polio and straight polio vaccine available.

The health ministry is sending all supplies to the counties considered priority areas: Oxford, Middlesex, Lambton, Waterloo and Perth, Dr. Fisher said.

In Toronto Wednesday a spokesman for Connaught Laboratories, Canada's only source of polio vaccine, said Tuesday there is a shortage of monovalent Salk vaccine, the type of vaccine preferred by the Ontario health ministry.

Carter Preparing For Blood-Curdling, Bone-Chilling Decision

WASHINGTON (CP) — While transitory diplomatic tempests and White House political blunders dominate the daily headlines, President Carter is preparing in relative obscurity to make one of the most crucial strategic decisions ever made by a peacetime president.

The choice facing him is whether to abolish or radically improve the U.S. land-based missile force, one of the three foundations of Western defence. The other members of the triad are strategic-missile submarines and strategic bombers.

Apprehensive congressional groups have called for a Carter statement on the issue by Sept. 30, warning that they will apply heavy pressure to force action.

The basic problem is that the land missile force of 54 Titans and 1,000 Minuteman missiles is becoming increasingly vulnerable to Soviet missiles. The precise accuracy of the Soviet missiles is unknown and U.S. estimates of their accuracy are classified, but Pentagon analysts say the Soviet missiles can certainly hit within 240 metres of their target.

In the fiscal year 1979 defence statement, defence secretary Harold Brown said that all of the SS-17, SS-18 and SS-19 missiles being deployed in the Soviet Union have a "high singleshoot kill probability" against even the recently-hardened U.S. missile silos.

STRIKE FIRST

With anticipated improvements in the Soviet missile force, that means the Soviet Union will have a first-strike capability against U.S. missiles by about 1983, making it possible for a Soviet missile salvo to effectively destroy the land-based missile deterrent.

The harmful effects of such a first-strike capability would not come solely in the unlikely event of Soviet nuclear aggression.

The first-strike Soviet capability would be a potent diplomatic weapon in future confrontations and would influence foreign perceptions of U.S. and Soviet strength.

The complete vulnerability of the missile silos could also lead a future U.S. government to adopt the "launch under attack" doctrine that has until now been carefully avoided.

Current doctrine is for the land-based missiles to "ride out" an attack, allowing the president to make a more considered decision on how and whether to retaliate. The alternative, to launch the missiles before they could be destroyed, assures a devastating strike on the Soviet Union—even if the detected Soviet attack turns out to be radar malfunction.

One school of thought holds that the United States could simply do without its land-based missile force, relying instead on strategic missile submarines and strategic bombers as a deterrent.

Such an approach, however, would mean possible disaster if satellite detection of the submarines is ever developed. Their immunity from attack would vanish, leaving them as easily destroyed in a first strike as the fixed silos. Most of the bombers would also be caught on the ground.

The solution being suggested to Carter would involve various means of making the land-based missiles mobile, at a staggering cost of $40 billion, so that the Soviet Union would never be certain of the precise location of most of them.

One problem with that is sheer cost, $40 billion piled on top of the $40-billion Cruise program and the $25-billion Trident submarine program.

Still, there is much to be said for modernizing the land missile system to maintain the credibility of each part of the triad and to preserve an option that could be essential in the future.

The bomber force was once on the point of being considered useless, but developments in electronic warfare and Cruise missile technology have made it again a real threat. And, if exotic weapons like charged particle beams are developed to destroy missiles, the bomber force could again be the primary strategic deterrent.

Similarly, the land-based missiles may well be worth keeping.

In the strange world of nuclear deterrence, where the unthinkable is routinely thought, spending $40 billion to keep an option open can make sense.

And that very fact is a compelling argument for vigorous pursuit of nuclear disarmament.

Anti-Theft Paint

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. is testing a paint that has its own fingerprint in efforts to cut down on theft.

A company spokesman says everything from chain saws to heavy jackhammers and portable drilling rigs are being marked with the crime-fighting paint developed by International Paints (Canada) Ltd.

BCFP representative George Lambert said his company and International have been working on the paint for more than a year. A pilot project to test the paint in the field was launched a few months ago.

Lambert said the new paint contains trace elements of rare metals which can be read through spectro-analysis, providing foolproof identification of recovered stolen property.

Lambert said the paint offers the same conclusive evidence as a fingerprint left at the scene of a crime.

"If a piece of equipment is recovered, police chip off some paint and send it to the International Paint lab for analysis," he said. "They have some people there who can prove that it's definitely BCFP paint, and who are prepared to make court appearances."

The company has not yet had a test case.

THEFTS INCREASE

Lambert said the project was launched because of increasing theft of company property by employees and outsiders. He did not have figures but said large amounts were involved.

Lambert said that equipment left in the bush by loggers is often stolen.

"People come in and pick things up like chain saws and walk off with them. No matter how carefully you try to hide equipment, they find it."

Lambert said the fast-drying fingerprint paint can be applied to just about any surface, and slated for the marking of tires, batteries, power tools, hand tools, logging equipment and even logs.

He said the paint can always be removed by the thief "but it takes a bit of work to get it off."

"What we're really hoping is that people both in and outside the company will see it and think twice."

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market recorded its sharpest advance in eight months at the close of active trading Wednesday.

The TSE 300 index gained 10.13 to 1,234.63, highest since March of 1974.

Rising energy issues and a seven-point jump at New York spurred the advance.

GM Recalls Trucks

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. Wednesday announced a recall involving 238,000 Chevrolet and GMC 1978 model pickup trucks.

The trucks are equipped with a frame-mounted, spare tire carrier which could become loose and fall off if the truck is backed into something.

The company said in a statement that a nut on a support bolt could crack on impact. There have been two non-injury accidents reported because of the defect, GM said.

Owners will be notified and a new support bolt and nut installed at no charge to owners, the company said.

"Hot Off The Press" At News of the North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — News of the North Wednesday published a front-page story and pictures about a fire that severely damaged the newspaper's building.

Craig McInnes, editor of the newspaper published here three times a week, said the fire Tuesday afternoon started behind the wooden building, spread quickly up the back of the building and gutted the top floor containing the paper's editorial offices. The ground floor, containing type-setting equipment, was flooded by water used to extinguish the blaze.

The cause of the fire is not known and no dollar figure is available for the loss, McInnes said.

McInnes said the staff, which was in the final stages of putting Wednesday's edition together, left the building quickly and no one was injured.

Last Quarrel

LAGRANGE HIGHLANDS, Ill. (AP) — Police said a newly-divorced couple apparently engaged in a final fight that left blood spattered from room to room in their home and ended in murder and suicide.

A policeman, called to investigate late Tuesday, said he looked into the front window of the home belonging to William and Suzanne Donnelly and saw their four-year-old daughter, Brandie, "standing in the blood in the living room trying to wake her mother."

Mrs. Donnelly, 26, had been stabbed 11 times in the abdomen, five times in the throat and once in the chest. A kitchen knife and three table forks were found next to the body, police said.

Donnelly, 33, was found in an adjacent garage, his head placed under the exhaust pipe of a car with the engine still running. Police said he had cuts on his wrists and had apparently tried to slash them.

Authorities said every room in the suburban home west of Chicago was covered with blood and that a partial barricade of furniture had been put up in the hallway. They speculated that the couple fought each other throughout the dwelling. The daughter was unharmed.

Neighbors said the Donnellies quarrelled frequently and police recently had been called to the home to halt a disturbance. They said after the divorce Donnelly stayed on until an apartment he had rented could be prepared.

Joe Clark Attacks DREE

Charlottetown (CP) — Federal opposition leader Joe Clark said Wednesday that a Progressive Conservative government would change the federal system to give the provinces more say in running their own affairs.

"People here know better how to run Prince Edward Island than some guy with a PhD and a computer in Ottawa", he told a luncheon for about 150 enthusiastic party workers.

He said the federal Liberal government has increasingly concentrated power in Ottawa during the last 10 years, moving into areas where the provinces, private enterprise, and volunteers could do the job better.

Clark, on a three-day Atlantic tour, said there has to be a strong central government, but in a vast country such as Canada, "diversity is not a danger."

"The federal system can allow for the regions and provinces to be trusted" in running their own affairs.

NEED BALANCE

"We have to recognize the need for balance and let the regions do the things they do best," he said.

He criticized the department of regional economic expansion (DREE), saying people in Ottawa "assume what they want is better for P.E.I. rather than the people who live here."

Clark said unemployment had increased fourfold in the Atlantic region in the last 10 years— "You are going backwards."

And in the last four years, $1.5 billion in investment or potential investment "had packed up and moved out or just didn't come because of the lack of a climate of trust in Canada," he said.

Senators Fight To Save Chamber

OTTAWA (CP) — After receiving clearance from Buckingham Palace, the federal government issued a statement Wednesday saying Queen Elizabeth approves the highly-criticized rewording of her role as outlined in Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional proposals.

The statement was read to a Senate-Commons committee studying the proposals by Marc Lalonde, federal-provincial relations minister.

Senators scoffed at the statement, saying the Queen had given her approval only after advice from her Canadian ministers. Constitutionally, the Queen has little choice but to agree with what her ministers advise.

Since the constitutional proposals were tabled in Parliament in June, Liberal, Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party politicians in Ottawa and the provinces have condemned the government for trying to flim-flam with the monarch's role.

Lalonde maintains the government wants no change in the Queen's role but merely wants to reword the outline of the functions of the monarch and Governor-General now contained in the British North America (BNA) Act of 1867.

His statement said: "The prime minister received from the private secretary to the Queen, dated June 20, a letter indicating that Her Majesty was content with the proposed change in the royal style and titles and was satisfied that the proposals would not alter the essential relationship of the Crown to Canada."

"The prime minister received a similar intimation from the Queen personally during the audience she gave him in Edmonton on Aug. 5."

Trudeau told the Queen last October, during her visit to Ottawa, that the government planned to introduce constitutional proposals possibly affecting the Crown's relationship to Canada, Lalonde said.

"He explained the importance that a renewal of our federal system could have in relation to meeting the campaign of the government of Quebec to persuade the people of Quebec to vote for separation of that province from Canada."

After the government formulated its proposals, former justice minister Ron Basford visited the Queen on June 15 at Buckingham Palace to show her the recommendations. Five days later, the Queen notified Trudeau of her approval.

Despite the assurances given by the government, Liberal senators continued to oppose what they perceive as a diminished role for the Queen.

They said the proposals would replace the Queen with the Governor-General as one of the three components of Parliament. The other two are the Senate and Commons.

The Queen would also be replaced by the Governor-General as commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

The power of the government would no longer be considered vested in the Queen but in the Governor-General.

During special Senate committee hearings held before the joint committee began, senators said the proposed changes suggest republicanism and that Trudeau appears to want the Governor-General to replace the Queen as the head of state.

LEADS ATTACK

Liberal Senator Sidney Buckwold from Saskatchewan led the attack by senators on Wednesday. There also are proposals to abolish the Senate, enshrine a charter of human rights in the constitution and give greater equality to the French and English languages.

The government's desire to transform the Senate into a House of the Federation, with half its members provincially-appointed, would result in a chamber of horrors, the former Saskatchewan mayor said.

A Progressive Conservative senator from Quebec, Martial Asselin, said the constitutional proposals, contrary to Lalonde's thinking, will do nothing to make Quebecers feel happier within Confederation.

Several senators and MPs castigated the government for pushing ahead with constitutional changes before the Task Force on Canadian Unity has reported.

The work of the study group and the money it spent are wasted, said Perrin Beatty, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament for Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo.

'Born Innocent' Case Dismissed Many Questions Still Unanswered

WASHINGTON (CP) — The dismissal last week of the Born Innocent drama suit against the NBC television network provides few answers to the complex and disturbing questions about the effects of TV violence on viewers.

Shortly before a San Francisco judge threw out the $11-million suit, NBC lawyers assured him that the 1974 television drama did not incite the grisly rape of a nine-year-old girl just four days after Born Innocent was screened.

The jury never got a chance to decide what did cause the attack, since NBC persuaded the judge to dismiss the case on constitutional grounds.

But the question of motive—what prompted four children to pin the nine-year-old down on a sand dune and rape her with a beer bottle—likely will persist, analysts say.

If it wasn't the scene in Born Innocent which graphically portrayed the rape of a girl by three or four others using the handle of a plumber's helper—a type of attack considered by human sexuality experts to be fairly rare—what was it?

CREATES RISK

The child's lawyer, Marvin Lewis, accused NBC of negligence and recklessness for what he termed the foreseeable result of the broadcast which, aired in family viewing time, "created an undue risk of harm" for the child and perhaps for others.

For NBC, the main job was to show that television drama is protected by the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment, which allows for freedom of expression.

NBC warned, probably correctly, that if it is not, any violent scene in future television shows, movies, books, newspapers or other media might be held accountable for real-life crime committed using similar methods.

The judge in the case ruled that Lewis would have to prove that the film incited the attack on the girl. And, following the lead of the U.S. Supreme Court, he interpreted incitement of a crime to mean advocacy of a crime.

Such a task, Lewis conceded, was impossible. He plans to appeal.

In using the 2½ minute rape scene, NBC says its intention was to cause revulsion and condemnation of such acts—exactly the opposite of the effect the child's family and lawyer allege.

The tragedy of the case appears to be, however, that if the child's attackers did in fact get the idea from the television show, then the intentions of the network are meaningless.

If the attackers watched Born Innocent—something which has not been determined—it might be perfectly reasonable to assume that the fictional presentation served as at least the basis of the idea behind the real-life crime.

Analysts predict that if the case is appealed, NBC will probably be cleared of responsibility for the brutal attack of the child.

Fulton Attacks Gov't

Mr. Jim Fulton, federal NDP candidate in Skeena in a press release received today says:

Recent announcements by the Conference Board of Canada indicate that unemployment will continue to rise. Nearly half of the jobless in Canada are between the ages of 15 and 24. These young people must rely to an ever greater extent on their families for financial support.

"There are jobs for these young people on municipal projects, in business and in rural areas if the government would take the time to plan," said Fulton. "Every town needs recreation facilities and landscaping; every business would benefit from new creative energy and every farm has a potential for labour."

"Increasing the production of goods and services through long-term planning and job creation must become our national priority," continued Fulton.

"Last week we heard the Prime Minister apologize for ten years of poor government. The facts however are clear, Canada needs a government dedicated to long-term solution, short term budgets, after all, apologies don't buy groceries or raise families."

"Death Be Not Proud"

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A judge ruled today that a comatose 12-year-old boy must remain connected to life-support equipment despite a petition from his father to unplug him.

Norfolk County Probate Judge Jeremiah Sullivan said evidence is not conclusive that the brain of Louis Stone is dead. The boy has been in a coma since July 2 when struck in the heart by a BB gun pellet accidentally shot by his father. The boy is at Goddard Memorial Hospital in Stoughton, Mass.

The father, Neville Stone, 49, said Monday he wanted the boy removed from devices keeping him breathing. He switched from testimony July 28 in which he had pleaded with the judge to keep the boy on a respirator.

"A vegetable," Stone said, "I can't live with seeing him like that."

Myra Stone, Louis's mother, had said she wanted her son to remain on the equipment.

Dr. Milton Brougham, chief surgeon at Carney Hospital, testifying for the parents, said some of Louis's reflexes still persist and the boy has not sustained total brain death.

Susan Elizabeth Blackhall, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Blackhall of Powell River, married Walter Douglas Thorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thorne of Sooke, B.C., on July 15.

Elaine Rosenberg officiated at the double-ring evening ceremony in Westview United Church, which was decorated with baskets of blue hydrangeas and white daisies, with pots of orange chrysanthemums. Margaret Ferguson was the organist and Connie Gruntman sang "Morning Has Broken". Jack Blackhall gave his daughter away in marriage.

Jeff Hawker was best man and the ushers were Briane Thorne, brother of the groom, and John Blackhall, brother of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon over taffeta, gathered into an empire waist. The sweetheart neckline was trimmed in lace and lily point cuffs complimented the long sleeves. Susan's knee-length veil fell from a cap of studded pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet of blue carnations and white daisies, the maid of honor carried a similar bouquet and the attendants carried yellow carnations and white daisies.

The maid of honor was Janet Blackhall, sister of the bride, and she wore a pale blue floral gown. The sister of the groom, Pat Thorne, and Julie Ann Garrish were the bridesmaids and they also wore pale green floral gowns. The attendants all wore white daisies in their hair.

The reception was held in the Pow Wow Room at the Beach Gardens, where guests were served a buffet dinner. Bud vases of carnations and baby's breath were placed on each table and the bridal table was decorated with bouquets of blue and white daisies, flanked by blue candles. A three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and decorated in blue and white by Joan Shemming, was on a separate table flanked by white candles.

Peter Blackhall, uncle of the bride, proposed a toast to Susan.

The mother of the bride wore a pale orange floral gown with a matching sheer coat. Her corsage was of white carnations with an orange rosebud. The mother of the groom wore a beige and brown floral gown, with a corsage of white carnations and an orange rosebud.

Kim Thorne, the groom's sister, was in charge of the guest book and "Daybreak" supplied music for the reception.

The bride wore an off-white pant-suit with brown accessories to begin a wedding trip to Vancouver Island, the Interior and the Queen Charlottes.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. P. Blackhall, grandmother of the bride, Wm. Blackhall, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Blackhall, Tracy Hentle, Judy Hindle and Ken Hindle, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. David Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thorne of Delta; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thorne and Kim and Pat of Sooke, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. John Thorne, Briane Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones, Barbara Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ian Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Sims and Mrs. and Mrs. New, all of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Callaghan, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Miskelly, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Todd, Jim Thorne and Lynn McNeil, of Kitimat; Julie Ann Garrish of Cranbrook, Grant Laird of Fernie; Walter Thorne of Barnett; Jeff Hawker of Telkwa; Mr. and Mrs. Hawryluk of Beaver Cove; and Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Todd of Sechelt.

Susan and Walter plan to make their home in Kitimat, where they will both be teaching.

Denies death due to nursing crisis

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coroner Glen McDonald was irresponsible in his comments on the three unnatural deaths at Vancouver General Hospital before completing his investigation, Health Minister Bob McClelland said Tuesday.

McClelland said he does not believe the recent deaths disclosed Thursday by McDonald have anything to do with the present nursing crisis.

"And I feel he (McDonald) was irresponsible in the statements he made in advance of his review," the minister said.

Hosaid he was referring to McDonald's comment that "you'd have to be deaf, dumb and blind not to know there's some kind of trouble (at VGH)."

McDonald made the statement Thursday when he announced that inquests have been called to investigate the nature of the VGH deaths and to determine whether the current nurse staffing problems played any part in them.

McDonald also said Friday that the lack of staffing at the hospital is evident and must be corrected if a high standard of patient care is to be maintained.

HAS NO COMMENT
McClelland would not comment as to whether the statements would constitute grounds for ordering another coroner to hear the inquests. McDonald is B.C.'s chief coroner.

McDonald said later Tuesday that he will proceed with the inquests. "I have no further comments to make," he said. "He (McClelland) is the minister of health and I have my sworn duty to perform."

The first inquest, set for Aug. 23, will investigate the death of July 18 of Baljit Lake, 39, of Vancouver, who suffered from multiple sclerosis and apparently died of self-inflicted razor blade wounds to the abdomen. An inquest will be held Aug. 29 into the death of Danny Barnes, 26, of Burnaby, an epileptic who drowned while taking an unsupervised bath at the hospital July 7. An inquest Sept. 13 will look into the death of July 15 of Gertrude Gelblum, 57, of Vancouver, who died while being administered anesthesia for a bunion operation.

Three VGH senior nurses fired June 1 will be back on the job by Thursday with full retroactive pay and no conditions attached, their lawyer said.

Bennett wants fed. election

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — The indecision over whether there should be a federal election is compounding the uncertainty over Canada's economic future, Premier Bill Bennett said today.

Bennett told a news conference that he feels Prime Minister Trudeau should call an election and clear the air so the people will know that the government in power has a clear mandate.

Because of the uncertainty in the economy, Canadians don't need the added uncertainty of speculation over an election, he said.

The premier said it will take several years to sort out Canada's economic problems.

"There can be no instant economic miracle," he said. "But there will have to be a term of responsibility."

Bennett said he has been told by a number of foreign businessmen that the only places in North America they would consider investing in right now are the United States, Alberta and British Columbia.

The fact that they consider Alberta and B.C. with such optimism even though they are part of Canada as a whole, he said, "should give pause for thought."

It should also prompt Ottawa to give more serious consideration to the economic proposals of the western provinces, he said.

Vancouver "baron" jailed for fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hermann von Pfetten, 46, a Vancouver man arrested as a West German baron wanted for stock fraud in that country will remain in a Denver jail until at least next week.

The United States government has until Tuesday to appeal provisions which would have released him on $100,000 bail.

Von Pfetten, who is not well known by his neighbors in Vancouver's affluent Shaughnessy district and not on the social register of the West German consulate here, was arrested in Denver Thursday while on a business trip.

The fraud was allegedly committed 13 years ago and involved $1 million.

An official in the U.S. attorney-general department's Colorado office said the 5-judge appeal the bail provisions came from Washington, D.C.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman Bob Stevenson said his department is appealing the bail in conjunction with the attorney-general's office in Denver.

DECLINES COMMENT
Stevenson declined to comment on why the departments are appealing bail.

Vancouver lawyer John Taylor, representing the baron, said in an interview from Washington, D.C., that von Pfetten was involved in a Denver real estate project at the time of his arrest.

He said Jose Font, president of Fontile Corporation Ltd., of Vancouver is also involved in the deal.

But the baron's business operations remain secret. Members of von Pfetten's family and business associates refuse to comment on details of his dealings.

Taylor said he has been frustrated in representing von Pfetten because details of the charges the baron faces in West Germany have not been released.

"There are men who are happy without knowing it," Vauvargues said.

Minding Centre moves

The Child Minding Centre has been closed for August, but will be opening the first week in September in its new location.

The centre recently moved from its old building on the corner of Kalum and Olson into a municipal building at 4542 Park Avenue.

A donation draw was held last month to raise money for the facility and $79 was realized.

Anne Crouch was the winner of a hand-made baby quilt made by Nancy Van Herk.

Pipeline comp. denies U.S. suit

Calgary (CP) — Foothills Pipe Lines (Yukon) Ltd. today denied a U.S. report that it intended to sue the United States government for unspecified damages if approval of the $1.5-billion Alaska highway natural gas pipeline is withheld.

Dianne Narvik, Foothills senior vice-president and responsible for public relations, said remarks attributed to her had "been taken out of context."

The Vancouver reports quoted Mrs. Narvik saying the Canadian and U.S. governments are both bound by international treaty to carry through with the project.

Failure to do so would give Foothills and its U.S. partner, Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, Utah, the right to claim damages from the government that breaks the treaty.

"We've always taken the position that the agreement is binding on both governments," the Vancouver story quoted her saying.

The 7,520-kilometre pipeline project now is between six months and eight months behind schedule, due mainly to delays in the U.S.

Powell River plane crash

VANCOUVER (CP) — An annual fishing trip by nine business executives and lawyers was cut short this week when their chartered plane crashed at Powell River airport.

Two men were taken to hospital at the south coast community and later released, while the others suffered minor injuries when their twin-engine aircraft broke into two pieces on the side of the runway.

Alcan vice-president John Hale of Montreal, and Vancouver lawyer Douglas McK. Brown were treated in Powell River hospital for minor injuries and released.

Also aboard the plane were former MacMillan Bloedel president Ralph Shaw, former senator John Nichol, lawyer Thomas Ladner, travel service executive Cornelius Burke and Vancouver businessmen Peter Evans, Herbert McArthur and Lawrence Culler.

The plane was chartered from West Coast Air Services of Richmond, B.C., and was headed for the Dean River, near Ocean Falls, B.C. Overcast conditions forced the plane to land at Powell River, airport workers said.

The skies later cleared and pilot Albert Forth of Richmond, who also suffered minor injuries, decided to take off.

Witnesses said the plane never got airborne but veered off the runway, struck a bank and split in two. There were no flames.

Roy Joblin, a federal ministry of transport, airworthiness inspector, said weather conditions had no effect on the takeoff but he would not comment further.

Political plans for president

VANCOUVER (CP) — Outgoing Simon Fraser University president Pauline Jewett said Tuesday she has cut short her term of office because she is considering another try at federal politics.

The university announced Tuesday that George Pedersen, vice-president of the University of Victoria, will take office as SFU president Jan. 1.

Mrs. Jewett, who will leave the presidency Dec. 31 instead of next August, said in an interview she is considering a nomination as New Democratic Party candidate for the federal riding of New Westminster.

If elected, she would replace MP Stuart Leggett (NDP—New Westminster), who has said he will not run again federally but will seek office in the next provincial election, expected next year.

Mrs. Jewett said there had been no pressure on her to leave SFU early, but she wanted to free herself for the possibility of seeking public office.

"Ordinarily, I would be beginning a year's research leave at the end of my term, then would return as a professor," she said. "That is still a possibility."

Jewett, who has tenure at SFU as a political science professor, was reluctant to say she would definitely run in the next federal election because she "still has some people to talk to."

Last October, she lost the NDP nomination in the federal riding of Burnaby to law student Svend Robinson.

4 killed in crash

TAHSIS, B.C. (CP) — Four people died Tuesday when their light plane crashed at the 3,000-metre level of a mountain just north of this Vancouver Island community, RCMP said today.

Police said a small fire was spotted at the scene of the crash at Amal Inlet. He said positive identification of the bodies and the plane is pending.

Radio mgr. dies

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Don Prentice, general manager of radio station CJCI and Prince George citizen of the year in 1976, died in hospital today, two weeks after it was discovered he had cancer. He was 34.

Prentice came here in 1968 and worked as a disc jockey for radio station CKPG for three years. He moved to CJCI in 1971.

Non-Catholics not fired

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — The chairman of the Catholic school board in the Okanagan city denied Wednesday that his board received a church directive to remove non-Catholic teachers from the board's schools.

Sandy Perry said in an interview that local Catholic schools now have three non-Catholic teachers and are hiring another. He was responding to a Hearing a woman declare that a statement I made was a typical "male chauvinist" remark, I asked her how far she thought women had progressed in their battle for equal rights.

"As long as we have children, we'll never have equality," she said. All the talk, all the propaganda, all the political movements to bring women out of the dark ages and enable them to benefit from the same rights, the same opportunities and an equal place in society - no matter how well-intentioned some of them may have been, have had little effect, she felt.

I asked her to tell me how. "Men are physically stronger. How can women ever forget the man they have to compete with in the marketplace is capable of breaking their neck, raping them, or proving their physical superiority in a hundred different ways? Childbearing: Having a child knocks women out of the struggle for equality in the marketplace. Noticeably pregnant women are still - and probably will continue to be, a social embarrassment in the business world.

"But that is only the beginning. Immediately the child is born the woman becomes a second class citizen. She is the one who has to worry about a "sitter" if she intends to stay in the running to earn a living. If she decides to let her husband support her, no matter how "important" motherhood is made out to be, the fact that she is being "kept" by a man - she and her child - puts her in an inferior position. Getting up nights for the four hour feedings, the diaper changes, and all the rest knocks her out from putting in a hundred per cent effort in the office, hospital, clinic, classroom, - or wherever she works.

THE EDITOR NOTES:

In response to the several observant readers of the Vancouver "Province" and "Sun" concerning articles discussing the sale of the Sterling chain of newspapers - of which we are a very small part - perhaps as much as one and one quarter per cent (and that at inflation prices) - we wish to make the following un-authorized statement...

"Keep reading!" Our having celebrated a 70th anniversary as a local Terrace newspaper - this year by sponsoring the Riverboat Days Parade - one would hope gives us a feeling of confidence that change - when and if it comes - is nothing to fear and, like the Skeena River that runs through Terrace, we shall just keep rolling along, (hopefully not as polluted) side by side for another 70.

If any of our businessmen wish to ensure our continued operation, one of the best ways they can do so is to patronize the advertising columns and pages of the HERALD. Just as it requires rainfall to keep the Skeena alive, so advertising is the "life giving" medium of every newspaper, and must keep pouring in.

OTTAWA RUMOURS

From Ottawa, today, the Parliamentary Press gallery was agog with the rumour the Prime Minister was considering liquidating three departments of the government: DREE (Department of Regional Economic Expansion), Urban Affairs and Science and Technology. The few oldtimers who have survived the Journalist Hell of the Press Gallery were recalling the 1929-39 period of the Great Depression, when, sometime during that decade Prime Minister R.B. Bennett liquidated a Federal Department - the Department of the Interior. The federal government never forgave him, it is said, and his province has suffered studied neglect from Ottawa ever since.

IONA CAMPAGNOLO

Those who have been watching the national news on television will have been noticing how much in demand the Skeena member is for interviews and news clips. Especially since the great success of the Edmonton Commonwealth Games.

Perhaps more than any other single event, the Games has made Iona Campagnolo, Minister of Fitness and amateur Sport, a national figure. Almost every major columnist is quoting her, these days.

Charles Lynch, Southern News Service columnist, said this week, "Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo, who was carried round the track by a jubilant Canadian team at the close of the games calls it (the Canadian success) a breakthrough in confidence in Canada."

"I believe," she said, "that Canadians do want to win." She thinks, Lynch continues, that with high performance athletes as our inspiration, Canada can become a nation of winners. The combination of government and private support of sports, she says, will be "Canada's gift to the world."

"This is heady stuff," Lynch thinks. "Somebody may suggest that Iona be given a saliva test."

Asked if our top athletes had not become professionals through subsidies and aid programs, Lynch continues, "Iona said, 'There are no amateurs left in the world. We attend to the need of our athletes...we are seeking excellence - that is the name of the game.'"

Describing the miracle that has been wrought by the Commonwealth games, much of which he attributes to Iona Campagnolo, the veteran journalist and nationally known harmonica player Charles Lynch, summed up:

"No matter. Canada has made history! There is many a wet eye in Edmonton now that the games are over, and a city that can cry for joy has to be a better place than it was before."

STERLING PERFORMANCE

The editorial column of Monday's Province is almost amusing in its grudging admiration for the Sports minister, claiming the Games success by that department is being used to make political Brownie points:

"It was of course, gratifying to Sport and Fitness Minister Iona Campagnolo to see that performance as a result of her efforts to develop a well-funded program to produce superior athletes. She may be criticized for making sports improvement a political objective. And while we applaud the performance we should in no way try to turn it into some kind of extension of the "superior political system" in this country. That is the very thing tarnishing so many recent olympiads."

"...It should be remembered that a sport and fitness minister was appointed with the approval of the country and she was expected to do something to help improve the quality of our athletic endeavours."

It was encouraging for us to note the editorial was headlined, "Sterling Performance". Perhaps it was just part of a chain of circumstances!

"As long as we have children we'll never have equality with men"

"No matter how organized a mother may be, she will always be faced with a feeling of guilt that she is neglecting her duty as a mother by going out to work.

From the standpoint of salary - a man's salary is usually for himself. A woman, with a child to support, a sitter to pay for, and as the years go by - the schoolbooks, school clothes, and all the expenses of a growing child - hockey practice, shows, summer camps and later, education - not to mention such frills as dancing lessons, music lessons, clubs, etc. - she ends up with far less than a man gets from his salary.

In every walk of life, a woman is confronted with her inferiority. "I'll bet you three quarters of the women who drive a car couldn't change a flat tire if they had to. The very process of tire changing is made for men, not women," said my friend.

And when it comes to sex?

Sex is, has been - and probably always will be a Man's game. The simple anatomy of sex puts a woman at a disadvantage from the very beginning. A simple walk through any drug store will show you how un-equal the costs are for a woman compared to a man. A man can get by with an electric razor and a box of Kleenex for a whole year. Look at the myriad of personal items in clothing and hygiene and hair care and cosmetics society demands a woman purchase - just to survive? A man's haircut costs a few dollars and lasts a couple of months. If a woman is to be her best, her hair alone will cost a cool thirty to fifty dollars a month. Women's clothing is so fragile it has to be constantly replaced - the thin soled fashionable shoes, sheer panty-hose, etc. A man can wear the same pair of brogues all year, and a pair of slacks - and sweaters or jackets are good for ages.

When you make an appointment to see a doctor - next time notice the waiting room - 9 out of 10 waiting there will be women with or without kids!

In any bank - sure, most of the staff will be women - but nine chances out of ten, the best paying jobs will be held by males. The same in hospitals, factories, insurance offices, travel agencies, law firms, dental offices - It's always the man on the top - at the top, I mean, she corrected herself.

So then I put my favourite question to her. Politics.

Look, I said, women have had the vote for over half a century, now. Why are there so few women in politics. If women would run for office, they could then change the laws that favour men and set up the system of Day Care centres, nurseries and the like that would free them from the burden of child-raising, and pass legislation that would help them reach the goal of equality with men insofar as the law can help.

Why is it the U.S. and Canada and the U.K. have never yet run a woman candidate for the top office of government? Why is it a woman mayor is still a comparative novelty? Why does Canada still have only two or three women cabinet ministers? Surely here is one area physical disadvantage does not apply?

It's a matter of higher education - and that's where women again are disadvantaged. Most top politicians are lawyers or have legal backgrounds. This requires a doctoral degree - about seven years of university, which means they will be about 25 years old when they graduate with their doctorate - without having had any practice whatever. The best years for childbearing are said to be the early twenties. Also, when they graduate they are generally up to their eyes in college loans they have to work to pay back - so they are pretty well forced to enter the marketplace. But it is much more than that.

A woman walking alone into a beer parlour is still suspect. A man is not. A man walking alone at night is seldom questioned. For a woman it still spells danger. Even a woman registering alone at a hotel, or going alone into a restaurant... a billiard parlour or poolroom; a man going swimming - trunks only - no, our society is still in the dark ages, as far as I am concerned.

Do you see things generally getting better; do you think they are improving, and the future, at least, looks more optimistic.

"Not as long as women have children, and the world thinks the way it does," my friend concluded.

I paid for her drink. She walked out, silently, got into her car and drove home, alone.

I was saddened to think that some of what she had said must be true. And, because I am a man, I felt extremely guilty, somehow.

And I don't know what I can do to help. Except write an editorial!

Mormon Leader Is For Womanhood!

"Hold your heads high, you wives, mothers, homemakers. You engender life and enrich it. Don't trade that pervasive force for fleeting, surface tinkles."

Cherish it, enlarge it, magnify it. You hold a mighty office."

That's the message of the leader of Mormon women, Barbara B. Smith, who says women generally are feeling diminished and put down by the modern feminist push for different status, and need more assurance and pride in their essential womanhood. "They've been made to feel that the family and homemaking role is insignificant, that they're unimportant unless they're out competing with men and other women," she says.

"But that's not what it's all about. They're so important, so vital, so unique, and their potentialities are not limiting but limitless."

She said in an interview that the present-day rush of women into outside jobs, leaving children and home to others, has been marked by increased juvenile crime, child abuse, broken families and other problems, and that it undercuts women themselves by depriving them of their special, tremendous impact in the world.

"When they give up their responsibility to their children they give up the most enduring, greatest influence in our society," she said, citing the deep, lasting reinforcement that attentive mothers give the young.

"When it comes to guiding future generations, women have always had the most vital, powerful role."

Not that Mrs. Smith advocates wives being tied solely to the home, far from that.

AIRSTREAMS IN THE RAIN — One hundred and twenty-six Airstream trailers braved the muddy waters of the Prince Rupert Industrial Park last week as a part of a western Canada caravan tour. The four trailers in the foreground belong to the group's officials, the Caravan Leader, the Service Representative, the Recreation Supervisor, and the Caravan Advance Man.

Caravaners claim:

'Travelling in a caravan sure beats sitting in a rocking chair!'

The Industrial Park at Butte Rapids is unimpressive at the best of times; in the rain, it's downright depressing. That is, unless you are an Airstream Caravaner, whose spirits, it would appear, are never dampened.

For most of their eight-day stay in the city, the 259 Caravaners in 126 distinctive, gleaming cylindrical Caravans suffered silently, graciously, even joyfully through Rupert at its wettest.

"We've had a full month of sun up to now," Caravan Service Representative Howard Cox said last week, "so we can't complain."

Cox is one of the four persons employed by the Airstream Company to oversee the organization and smooth operation of the Caravan. Aside from Cox, the company has Dan Brown acting as the leader of the group, Elsie Portlock in charge of recreation, and an advance man, George Waggoner. The four are employed by Airstream's "Way of Life" Department, if you can believe it, a title that aptly describes its function - the promotion and betterment of the Airstream way of living.

These employees and others like them are employed on an occasional basis for the duration of one of the Wally Byam Club's many trips.

MOSTLY RETIRED

You may have noticed the Caravaners, most of them retired persons, around the city last week with their Wally Byam berets and their Wally Byam name tags, or perhaps seen them similarly outfitted at the comic hockey match this past weekend arranged by members of the Caravan. Wally Byam, was the designer and builder of the first Airstream trailer almost 30 years ago at an airport in Miami, Florida.

Byam decided that the world needed a completely self-contained trailer unit, something versatile enough to be able to operate without hook-ups and compact enough to travel extensively. His creation was prophetic of the mobile society of the '50s and '60s.

At the front of the Wally Byam Club directory ("Just like a little Bible," says Cox), which lists the club's 26,000 members along with their trailer numbers and other such pertinent information, one finds the "Wally Byam Creed," a list of about 10 precepts that are the basis of existence for the Way of Life Department.

Although Byam passed on some time back and the company was sold to Beatrice Foods seven years ago, the Club and Creed carry on.

'KITTY FARE'

Howard Cox, and his wife Lola, went on their first Caravan, 10 weeks in Mexico, in 1964, paying a kitty fee of $30. The kitty, a per trailer fee, pays for the organization and operation of the trip and partially pays the salary of the Airstream employees. Those of this year's "Western Canada Caravan No. 121", a 58-day-trip that began in Brandon, Manitoba on July 7 and will end in Sand Point, Idaho, and including an eight-day stop in beautiful Prince Rupert, paid a kitty fee of $236, still not a bad price when you consider the rising costs of travel.

When a 190 to 200 trailer Caravan, the average size, rolls into a city it's like an instant subdivision. The gathered, gleaming multitude is impressive in numbers, but the only relief from the drab sameness of row upon row of Airstreams is provided by the interiors of the individual units, which are as varied as the exteriors are alike.

Cox refers to the caravan as a "travelling city with the leader as its mayor." Just like any other city, this one has its laws. With 126 or more trailers, for one thing, extreme regulation in parking becomes a necessity. Also no member of the Caravan may enter a city on the route in advance of the Caravan. All Caravaners share the same facilities or lack of same. In other words, if a Caravan pulls into a site that has no hookups, no individual is allowed to seek out another trailer park in the area where hookups are available. On the road the rule is, if you can read the numbers on the trailer in front, you are too close. And, Caravaners always try to leave a site cleaner than when they arrived. "Although here," Cox said, gazing out the window of the Cox's Airstream at the mud and rock of the Industrial Park, "it may be difficult."

MANY COMMITTEES

Much of the actual operation of the Caravan is left up to the Caravaners themselves working in committee. There are committees for parking, departing, radio communication, water and first aid, among others. The committee members have duties on a rotating basis, and are easily recognizable by initials displayed in the windows of their vehicles. Thus if you see the initials DP in a car window, chances are it signifies not a war refugee but a De-parking Committee member from a Wally Byam Caravan.

According to Cox, Airstream Caravaners adopt a stoic philosophy, an extension perhaps of the Byam Creed. If things don't work out as planned, like the cancelled flight to Juneau which left several of the Caravaners stranded in Ketchikan, sleeping on the floor of a Youth Hostel, as Cox says, "Hock, that's just part of caravanning. And if we're stuck in the mud, well that's just part of caravanning, too. No one complains." Seventy-five to 80 per cent of the Caravaners are first-timers and Cox's advice to them is, "If you want everything like home, you'd better stay home."

ENJOYED STAY HERE

Despite a noticeable dearth of sunshine, the Caravaners seemed to enjoy their week in Prince Rupert, and there is no doubt that area merchants enjoyed the Caravaners. "These people are not afraid to spend money," Cox stated, or rather, understated. At the first International Airstream Rally to be held in Canada three years ago in Brandon, more than 4,000 Airstreams descended upon the city for one week leaving as a token of their visit over $3 million.

Although some Airstreamers tend to shy away from Caravans and their regimentation, there is a certain undeniable, and irrepressible vitality to caravanning. Howard and Lola Cox talk about one Caravan they took through Europe which included no less than three couples celebrating 50th wedding anniversaries during the trip, all of whom did not miss a single tour on the itinerary.

"You cannot judge a person by age," Cox said about Caravaners and caravanning, concluding, "It sure beats sitting down in a rocking chair."

AHOP Unpopular

VICTORIA (CP) — Nearly one of every five houses built on Vancouver Island under the federal Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) has been returned to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC), a spokesman said Monday.

John Dudiak, AHOP manager for the island, said in an interview that since the program was launched in 1976, CMHC has acquired 190 units through foreclosures, quit claims and buy backs. He said that of the 978 AHOP houses approved on the island 201 remain unsold.

Dudiak said more than 80 per cent of the CMHC acquisitions were in the past year, and include two rental projects — a 20-unit apartment in Esquimalt and a 48-unit development in Parksville — as well as 122 homes.

Flyers sign former Terrace player

Terrace

Hockey School Aug. 21-Sept. 1

Terrace and District Minor Hockey Association will be sponsoring a hockey school to be run from Monday August 21 till September 1st, and there are still a few openings for boys aged 12-14; and many openings for boys 7-9 years old.

Heading the instructors for the school will be Bob Peacock, who has been involved with the clinic ever since its inception three years ago. Helping Bob will be Gord Cochrane, former Terrace Centennial defenseman, Randy Henderson, a local teacher, Les Thorntson, who plays in the Commercial League, Thornhill Secondary School Principal Harold Cox, Cliff Sharples, and Lynn Kraling of the local R.C.M.P.

The classes will be divided into three age groups, 7-9 yrs., 10-12 yrs., and 12-14 yrs. Registration fees are $35 for the 7-9 year age group, and $65 for boys 9-14 years old.

Emphasis will be placed on skating and the basic fundamentals of hockey, learning while having fun rather than under a pressure situation. Fees include a sweater, and goalkeeping equipment will be provided, but the child will have to supply his own equipment, including sticks.

To register your child, or for further information, contact Bernie Seider at 635-5959, or 635-4049.

Six swim champs all that's left

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — With the third world swimming championships beginning Friday, a glance at the recent history of the sport proves one thing — fame can be short-lived.

Only three years separate these championships from the last world meet in Cali, Colombia, in 1975, and only two years have gone since the Montreal Olympics, but only six champions from each games have made the grade again.

Stars such as East Germany's Kornelia Ender, gold medalist in the Olympic freestyle sprints and 100-metre butterfly, and teammate Ulrike Richter have retired, while several U.S. men have discovered how short a swimming career can be.

While backstroke John Naber, butterfly specialist Matt Vogel and medley gold medalist Rod Strachan backed out of their own accord, outstanding men like John Henken (breaststroke), Brian Goodell (long-distance freestyle) and Bruce Furniss (200-metre freestyle) failed to qualify.

Even Gerald Moerken of West Germany, world record holder in the 100-metre breaststroke, had to stand back for the 200 metres — where he was world best in 1977 — after coming in fifth at the national championships here last month.

WILKIE GONE

Britain's David Wilkie, Montreal winner in the 100-metre breaststroke, is no longer on the scene, while the Soviet Union's woman star at the Olympic games, Marina Kosheva, has had to give way to 14-year-old prodigy Yulia Bogdanova.

Five U.S. men who struck gold in Colombia are missing, including Bill Forrester (200-metre butterfly) and Tim Shaw (200-, 400- and 1,500-metre freestyle).

Also gone is East Germany's gentle giant, Roland Matthes, one of swimming's all-time greats who won his first Olympic gold in Mexico in 1968 and went on to prove the exception to the rule of brief careers by holding onto his position at the top until Cali.

Glen Cochrane, former Terrace Centennial defenseman, has been signed to a three-year contract by the NHL's Philadelphia Flyers. Cochrane, a 6'3" native of Cranbrook, played alongside brother Gord during the 1973-74 season, the Centennials' initial season in the PNWHL. Only 15 at the time, he had 2 goals and 12 assists.

Glen was in Terrace for a few days, visiting with his brother Gord, who still resides here, and plans to play for the newly formed Terrace Timbermen this coming season. He really likes Terrace, and is enthusiastic about the Timbermen's chances for a league championship this year. "Terrace Timbermen should have a good team this year and I wish them lots of luck, and I hope the town of Terrace will get out and support them." He added jokingly, "They will have a new 'import' in Gord Cochrane, who will be 30 pounds lighter, and ready to play."

Glen played last season with the Victoria Cougars, where he had 7 goals and 40 assists, while spending 311 minutes in the penalty box. He was picked by Philadelphia June 15, during the 3rd round of the NHL's annual amateur draft, and signed his contract July 13 in Philadelphia. He is pleased with his contract, and more than happy to have been drafted by Philadelphia. "They're a real classy organization," he says, "And I'll be going to their training camp with a great attitude, ready to give out 100 percent." The hard hitting Flyers play the same style of hockey Glen is accustomed to, as he enjoys a physical game, with lots of hitting and close checking.

When he's not cutting down the progress of opposing forwards, Glen enjoys soccer and slowpitch softball, as well as the outdoors. "I've been athletically inclined ever since I can remember," he comments. During the summer he has been working on a commercial fishing boat out of Victoria. He plans to visit Terrace, and brother Gord for two weeks next summer, and do some sport fishing.

Glen left for Cranbrook yesterday, where he will teach a hockey school, then September 9 he's off to Philadelphia and the Flyers' training camp. Then comes the hockey season, where Glen will be playing either for the Flyers, or the Maine Mariners of the American Hockey League, a Philadelphia farm club.

'84 Olympics again scheduled for L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The now-we-have-them, now-we-don't 1984 Olympics appeared headed for Los Angeles again on Wednesday as the head of the city's negotiating team indicated an agreement abrogating the city of any financial responsibility for the Games was imminent.

"We're kind of over the points of substance and we're at a point of refining the language," said John Argue, who as head of the Southern California Olympic Organizing Committee has worked for months to bring the 1984 Summer Games to the area.

Argue would not deny published reports that the IOC has agreed to free Los Angeles from financial liability for the Games, an issue that has been the key stumbling block in the signing of a contract.

"We have steadfastly said that the city must protect its taxpayers," Argue said. "We think we're getting close with a concept that will work."

"There has been a breakthrough, but we're not there yet. I learned a long time ago that you don't have an agreement until you have an agreement."

Argue said he hoped to announce a contract later this week.

IOC and USOC officials refused to comment on any breakthrough.

The city was provisionally awarded the 1984 Games in May, with the condition that it sign an IOC-approved contract by July 31. But, that deadline has been extended repeatedly while the parties tried to resolve the question of financial liability.

IOC rules call for the host city of the Games and the national organizing committee of the host country to jointly sign the contract and accept financial responsibility.

The IOC several weeks ago rejected what was originally described as a "take-it-or-leave-it" proposal whereby the private Los Angeles Olympic Organizing committee, rather than the city, would have signed the contract, and it appeared then that the Games might be held elsewhere. But negotiations continued.

Thornhill closer to club purchase

Skeena Valley Golf and Country Club Members are close to purchasing the golf course from the present owners. In fact, it's hoped the deal will be concluded within the next few weeks.

Right now they have $22,000 in cash on hand, plus $26,000 in pledges for share memberships. They also have business commitments for $25,000 which adds up to $73,000 towards the purchase price of $250,000. A provincial grant of $83,000 — one third of the purchase price — has been assured from the government and more is expected from business commitments.

An executive spokesman says the situation looks very good and they hope to have a firm announcement by September.

The big item right now is to collect the $26,000 in share memberships which have been pledged by members. Most of these pledges were submitted earlier this year, and now is the time to collect them. Share memberships are $250 each.

Any club members who have not paid their pledge, or who wish to help in the purchase of the club, should get their money in as soon as possible. It can be turned in to the Bank of Montreal, or to any club executive member such as President Frank Skidmore, Vice President Fred Weber, Treasurer Earl Handford or Finance Chairman Sandy Sandover-Sly.

Fishing report

By Don Pearson, Custom Sports

High tide at 1:45 P.M. at 14.3 feet. Low tide at 7:20 P.M. at 4.6 feet.

Fishing yesterday was done in very nice weather with very little wind. Sue Channel was very good for salmon, but most other spots were very poor. Kitisaway was a poor spot, but Moody Point and Fish Trap produced five Springs. The glacial water colour in Douglas Channel extends out as far as Costa Rocks. I went fishing myself yesterday, and I couldn't find any Northern Coho, but would appreciate any information on their whereabouts from anyone who may have caught any lately.

Women's teams series begins

BOCHOLT, West Germany (CP) — Canada's national women's volleyball team begins on Thursday a series of five games against the West German national team and the outcome should indicate how Canada will do at the world championships later this month in the Soviet Union.

"We are in an elimination pool with South Korea, Brazil and West Germany in the world championships," said Moo Park, Canada's national coach. "South Korea is one of the best teams in the world so we have to beat the Brazilians and the Germans."

The top two teams in each of the six pools will advance to the semi-finals. Canada's team is built around four Olympic veterans: captain Audrey Vanderveiden, 24, of Burnaby, B.C.; Betty Baxter, 26, of Brooks, Alta.; Carole Bishop, 28, of Vancouver and Mary Dempster, 22, of Winnipeg.

"We are really looking to fill two holes," said Enzo Guerriero of Vancouver who is chairman of the women's national team program for the Canadian Volleyball Association. "All the other girls who played for Moo in Montreal are gone. So we have brought up eight girls from the junior national team and two of them will be starters."

TO TEST ROOKIES Park will test all his rookies in these games but Valerie Campbell, 22, of Winnipeg, a powerful spiker, is most likely to fill one of the vacant spots.

Canadian officials were shaken this spring when regular Patty Olson, 21, of Vancouver, quit the national team.

Sports Minister suggests change

VANCOUVER (CP) — A government body should be created to co-ordinate the efforts of the 66 federal departments and agencies which deal with recreation, Iona Campagnolo, minister of fitness and amateur sport, said Tuesday.

"I am now proposing to the cabinet that the fitness and amateur sport branch will assume responsibility for establishing a viable mechanism to co-ordinate on a continuing basis all recreation services and funds available at the federal level," Mrs. Campagnolo told the Canadian Parks and Recreation Association.

She suggested the new body be called Recreation Canada, and said communicating with federal departments and agencies, with provincial and international governments, and with national and international organizations concerned with recreation would be one of its responsibilities.

It would also encourage joint planning and collaboration among these bodies, support existing intergovernmental bodies concerned with recreation, and distribute information about recreation.

Mrs. Campagnolo also said municipalities should be allowed to become more involved in formulating recreational policy.

Thanks for help in moing Whitehorse Northern Times to correct circuit. Now would you care to look into the second part of the July 27 message? It asked whether Edm. Chess

Karpov-Korchnoi reach another draw

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Viktor Korchnoi agreed to a draw Wednesday in the 12th game of their world chess championship match but squabbled over who offered it.

The 27-year-old Soviet champion and the 47-year-old challenger, a Soviet defector, will continue the match today with their 13th game, Korchnoi playing white.

Florencio Campomanes, chief organizer of the $550,000 tournament, announced the draw almost five hours before the players were scheduled to resume play. The game had been postponed from Saturday night to give Karpov a rest.

It was the 10th draw of the tournament, which began July 18 and is expected to continue for at least three months. Each player has won one game. The first player with six victories takes the championship, which Karpov gained in 1974 when American Bobby Fischer refused to defend his title. The winner gets $350,000; the loser $200,000.

Wednesday's confusion was sparked by Korchnoi's denial he had offered a draw Tuesday night after Karpov, apparently expecting Korchnoi to seal his 44th move for adjournment, left the stage.

Lothar Schmid, the West German chief arbiter, said Korchnoi had offered the draw but then went ahead and sealed his move, took to king's rook 1.

On Wednesday, Korchnoi, 47, denied making the offer, saying: "Probably he misunderstood me."

Korchnoi claimed Karpov offered him a draw after his 43rd move, but the challenger said he rejected, saying the offer should be relayed through Schmid.

Tennis Tourney in Terrace this Sat

By Murdo MacDonald

Tennis players everywhere are invited to come out and take part in this weekend's tournament staged by the Terrace Tennis Club. Play begins this Saturday at 9:00 A.M. sharp, at the Lions tennis courts on Kalum St. below the arena. It continues non-stop until Sunday when all four finals will take place.

Anyone can enter; entries are NOT restricted to members only. Don't be timid or embarrassed merely because you only just got started playing and are therefore green and inexperienced. Why? Everybody's practically in the same boat, at least those of us who took up the game since the courts were built late last fall.

Tournament play is fun and it is the best way to learn the technical side of the game quickly. It is also one of the best ways to lose weight, get in shape, and enjoy yourself all at the same time.

Events consist of singles and doubles for both men and women. The cost is $3.00 per event. Players will be seeded so that all first round losers end up in "B" flight. Each player is guaranteed a minimum of two games per event.

As the early response has been light, please register soon to ensure that this annual event gets off to a good start. Entry forms and other details can be obtained from any Tennis Club member or by phoning 638-1519. The tournament committee recommends that everybody enter both events, and those not having partners will be paired off with players of similar ability and experience.

Please do not wait any longer than 7:00 p.m. this Friday, when entries close and the draws are made up. Although every effort will be made at the courts on Saturday morning to accommodate late entries, players are cautioned to get their names in early to make sure that they get drawn.

Can. Open tennis purse reaches $210,000

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Open tennis tournament, a $17,000 event in 1970 but this year offering record prize money of $210,000, still is looking for a new sponsor after three months of involvement.

In May, Rothmans of Pail Mall Canada Ltd. announced that it would drop sponsorship of the Canadian Open after three months of involvement.

And, while a new sponsor has not been found, officials of Tennis Canada, the government group that oversees tennis development in the country, say they have a number of companies interested in taking over the event for 1979.

"I'd say we've got four warm prospects and 16 others that are interested," Ken Sinclair, Tennis Canada's national tournament director, said Wednesday.

"It's good that we've got this interest but we still would like to be closer to getting a new sponsor."

HALF IN PROMOTION
This year, Rothmans put up all of the $210,000 in prize money and could spend up to half of that amount in promotion of the nine-day tournament.

"These things are getting expensive, there's no question about it," says John McCormack, Rothmans tennis coordinator. "But that's not the main reason we're pulling out."

"We'd like to think that we've helped in making the Canadian Open tournament one of the top events in the world," McCormack said. "And because tennis interest in Canada has risen at the same rate, we think we've done our job of promoting the game in this country."

In 1969, when Open tennis was approved and the first tournament was held at the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club, the club underwrote the tournament for $10,000 and lost money in the process. Cliff Richey of the United States received a first prize of $2,000.

When Rothmans took over sponsorship in 1970, the $17,500 in prize money went to a total pool of 16 men and 16 women. The next year, prize money was increased to $70,000.

GRADUAL INCREASES

In 1973, when the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club again played host to the tournament, prize money jumped to $100,000. The amounts gradually increased to $130,000, $155,000, $160,000 and this year's $210,000.

The tournament has also improved its esteem on the international level. The Canadian Open is a Grand Prix event, part of a tour that awards more than $10 million in men's tournament prize money.

There are 98 other events on the Grand Prix circuit. Players accumulate performance points in the events to qualify for an eight-round playoff at the end of the season that boasts a $300,000 first-place prize.

Don Fontana, who has been Canadian Open tournament director for seven of the last nine years, says he thinks the tournament will continue even if a new sponsor is not found. But that doesn't explain to Fontana why a Canadian firm hasn't stepped in with the cash.

"If a similar tournament was up for grabs in the United States, it would be gone the next day," Fontana said. "They've got a list a mile long of corporations that want a tennis tournament sponsorship."

CPGA Tourney now an international event

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment and club selection will be the keys today as a field of top Canadian professionals, as well as 20 foreign players, tee off in the opening round of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association (CPGA) International tournament.

"It's a course that generally rewards a good golf shot and penalizes a poor one," says Jack McLaughlin, club professional at the host Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club.

"That's the way golf architecture should and that's the way it is at Shaughnessy."

The 6,647-yard layout has undergone extensive renovations since holding its last major tournament—the 1966 Canadian Open.

That year it played to a backbreaking 6,907 yards and prompted United States golfer Dave Hill to quit after a practice round saying "I'm not going to make an ass of myself here."

GREENS NEW

The new layout, with 12 redesigned greens, will play to par 72 and the nines will be reversed to take advantage of better spectator areas on the first nine holes.

"Some of the greens are tough," said McLaughlin. "The 17th, for instance, will result in several players taking three putts."

"It slopes back to front and it's multi-rolled—an excellent par three hole."

The CPGA tournament, which in previous years had been closed to international golfers, will have 17 PGA champions or representatives from around the world, as well as special invitees Arnold Palmer and Lanny Wadkins of the United States and Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina. Prize money has also been doubled to $100,000.

Eight former CPGA champions are in the field, including defending champion GEORGE Knudson, of Toronto. Knudson, who has won the title five times, including the last two years, said that although he was skeptical about the new format, he now thinks it will boost Canadian golf.

CHANCE FOR MANY
"For a lot of these guys it will be their only chance to play with guys like Palmer, Wadkins and De Vicenzo," he said.

Some of the outstanding foreign players include Simon Owen of New Zealand, Manuel Pinero of Spain and Nick Faldo of England.

Owen, 27, rebounded from a lengthy layoff with serious knee injury to win his country's PGA title last year, and was runner-up to Jack Nicklaus in this year's British Open.

Pinero, 27, won his third Spanish PGA championship last year and team with Severiano Ballesteros to win the World Cup team championship.

Faldo, 21, is the British PGA champion and swept all his matches in last year's Ryder Cup competition against a team of U.S. professionals.

Other top Canadian entries include Dave Barr of Vancouver, the winner of last week's British Columbia Open in Prince George, and Dan Halldorson, of Brandon, Man., winner of the 1978 Manitoba Open.

National League Baseball Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — Derrel Thomas smashed a two-out, two-run homer off reliever Skip Lockwood in the ninth inning on Wednesday to give San Diego Padres a 2-1 triumph over New York Mets in National League baseball.

Jerry Koosman, the Mets' starter, had been coasting along with a six-hitter into the ninth inning when Dave Winfield doubled to centre with one out. Lockwood came on and got pinch-hitter Jerry Turner on a long fly to right with Winfield advancing to third. Then Thomas connected for his second home run of the season and gave Lockwood his 10th loss against seven victories.

John D'Aquisto, the third Padre pitcher, came on in the eighth to even his record at 3-3.

The Mets had taken the lead in fourth when Elliott Maddox singled and moved to second on a ground out. John Stearns was walked intentionally before Montanez singled to right.

CHICAGO (AP) — Phil Niekro posted his 193rd career victory with a three-hitter, and Jeff Burroughs and Joe Nolan slugged sixth-inning home runs as Atlanta Braves defeated Chicago Cubs 9-0 in National League baseball on Wednesday.

Niekro, 35-12, and loser Mike Krukow, 5-1, each gave up just two hits through five innings. The Braves led 2-0 at the time on Chicago second baseman Rodney Scott's throwing error.

But with one out in the sixth, Krukow walked Gary Matthews, then served up Burroughs' 18th home run to centre. One out later, Joe Nolan belted his third home run of the season to give Atlanta a 5-0 lead.

The Braves added a run in the seventh on Rowland Office's RBI single and three in the eighth on a single by Burroughs, Bob Horner's 14th home run and Dale Murphy's 19th home run.

Victoria evens series

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dan Green scored with 17 seconds remaining in overtime Tuesday night to give Victoria Shamrocks a 12-11 victory over Vancouver Burrards and square their best-of-seven semi-final Western Lacrosse playoff series at 2-2.

The goal was Green's second of the 10-minute overtime period and fifth of the game.

Fifth game in this series is tonight in Victoria with the sixth here Saturday night.

Pat Ryan's third goal of the game tied the contest at 11 after Green scored at 1:01 of the overtime session.

Dave Tasker of the Burrards sent the game into overtime with seven seconds to play after Charn Dhillon's goal with 2:19 left put the Shamrocks in front 10-9. Dhillon and Jeff Whitney Griffiths, picked up from the Victoria Juniors, scored two goals each for the Shamrocks who also got goals from Rick Baker, Ivan Thompson and Ron MacNeil.

Doug Hayes and Ron Pinder each scored twice for Vancouver while Bill Foote, Rico Bellucci and Pat Diller accounted for the rest of the Burrards' goals.

The game produced high-quality netminding as Larry Smeltzer of the Rocks blocked 45 shots, including six in overtime, and Dave Evans of Vancouver blocked 41.

FACTS And FALLACIES

Many people believe that the oft-quoted saw "Tennis, anyone?" was Humphrey Bogart's only line in his first play. However, on a television program taped many years earlier but not broadcast until 1974, Bogart himself denied it.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

Weekend Relaxation
Psychiatrist Eugene B.F. Riley of New York has observed: "Changing the pattern of living entirely, even for just a weekend, can give you a fresh perspective on problems, a better sense of proportion about what is important. This can be more beneficial than... a two-week jaunt that simply transplants the family unit, complete with tensions, pressures and schedules intact."

Near New York—in Stamford, Conn.—a hotel is making it easy to do just what the doctor ordered. At the Marriott a couple can stay two nights in a spacious room, breakfast in bed, brunch on Sunday, and check out late the second afternoon, all for $89.90 complete. The hotel has an indoor/outdoor pool. Golf, tennis and sailing are minutes away. Cares and troubles seem much further away.

For sale, '72, 11' Security camper fully equipped. Phone anytime 635-9734. Asking $3,000. (c5-14)

Never before has the common chicken occupied a more prominent role in American eating habits. As homemakers search for appealing low saturated fat dishes to tempt their families, the chicken has become a "Very Important Food." More and more doctors are urging Americans to decrease the amount of saturated fat in their menus and increase the amount of cholesterol-lowering foods. This means eating fewer dairy products and fatty meats and more poultry, fish and vegetable oils.

Chicken plays a big role in the program. More enticing ways to serve the "V.I.F." are needed. This Chicken and Rice duet is a good solution. It is a one-dish meal which means little cleanup. And it is low in saturated fat and high in polyunsaturates. Various spices and vivid green peas, chopped tomatoes, parsley and onion co-star with rice, chicken and Fleischmann's Corn Oil Margarine. Fleischmann's Margarine is made from 100% corn oil. No oil is more effective than corn oil in reducing the level of cholesterol in the blood. This colorful casserole combination will evoke the time-honored praise of all successes: ENCORE!

The Skateboard Rolls Ahead In Popularity...And Injury allow their children to use a skateboard without knowing the basic rules of safety. The following is a list published by the American Chiropractic Association. You should explain and stress the importance of these rules to your children as they may reduce the chances of serious injury.

Buy a Good Skateboard. Skateboards that are well-constructed may cost a little more, but they are much safer. However, no matter how expensive the board, it should be inspected regularly for hazards like loose nuts or screws, wheels that stick or are worn.

Wear Protective Clothing. A helmet is important. Head injuries are among the most serious. Also, elbow pads, knee pads and gloves can't hurt... but falling without them can!

Obey Basic Safety Rules. There are certain "common sense" rules a skateboarder can follow to eliminate some of the possibilities of accidents. (1) Don't apply non-skid tape to the top surface of the board. This could prevent a necessary "slipping free" of the board to avoid injury. (2) Stay out of the street! Cars can seem to come out of nowhere... and so can skateboarders. The result of the two meeting can be disastrous to the skateboarder. (3) Don't ride on heavily travelled sidewalks or in busy shopping areas. The danger of injury here is as great to the pedestrian as it is to the skateboarder. (4) Never hang on to a moving vehicle, be it a car, truck or bicycle. It's easy to end up losing control or even being run over.

Assuming you take all the precautions, go one step further—don't underestimate the seriousness of any accident. Make sure you give immediate attention to even the slightest injury. And even if no injury is suspected, as a responsible parent of a youngster caught up in the skateboard craze, you can't afford to overlook the need for regular spinal examinations by your family doctor of chiropractic.

Doctors of chiropractic across the country are concerned about parents who... even death. Probably no member of the healing arts professions is more aware of the potential dangers of skateboarding than the doctor of chiropractic, for many of the injuries involve damage to the neck, back and spine. And even where serious injury has not occurred, there is a high incidence of spinal misalignment which occurs as a result of "minor falls, bumps and jolts." These can create structural problems which may interfere with normal nerve function to the vital organs.

TIPS ON TRIPS

Go to where the students are—that's one way to get the real flavor of a place you're visiting. Some places are especially worth a visit.

College eatery in Puerto Rico. Puerto Rico. Go to Rincon de Espana in Hato Rey, a suburb of San Juan. The student luncheonette is right next to the University of Puerto Rico, 111 Eleanor Roosevelt Street, Hato Rey.

Paris. At the student square, Place du Tertre near the white domed Sacre Coeur church, choose one of the open air restaurants and watch the student-artists haggle over price with potential customers.

Tokyo. Stop at one of the coffee shops off the Ginza, and don't be surprised when a Japanese student plunks a coin into the jukebox, and out comes the latest in American music. The students love it!

Montreal. The place to see is Place Jacques Cartier, where outdoors you have guitar players and folk singers on the mall, while indoors on both sides of the street are some of the finest French restaurants in the world—many with prices students can afford!

A GIFT FOR MOTHER

Mothers are called "mere" in French, "madre" in Spanish, and "mor" in Danish, but no matter what they're called, they deserve the finest of gifts for Mother's Day.

Sure Mother-pleasers are Collector's Plates from Svend Jensen of Denmark. Extraordinary concern for quality and detail is evident in each of the limited edition Mother's Day Plates. The series, begun in 1970, is delicately painted in classic Copenhagen blue tones on a bas relief design.

Each 7 1/2-inch plate undergoes 42 hand operations by 15 craftsmen and takes 22 1/2 days to complete. No two finished plates are exactly alike, for each is painted entirely by hand. When the edition is closed, the original mold is destroyed so no more can ever be fired.

Called "Dreams," the 1978 edition depicts a boy intent on his toy sailboat. It was created by Danish artist Mads Stage, renowned for his sensitive portrayal of children. Likely to inspire Mother with warm feelings 365 days a year, the plate is available in fine jewelry, gift and department stores throughout the country.

LEARNING HOW TO LOOK

Next time you're in a forest, look around more carefully. You'll be surprised how much there is to see.

Giving In to Boy Didn't Hold Him

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl who has been in love with a guy I'll call Donny since last summer. He broke up with me because he said I wouldn't let him go out with the boys as often as he wanted to.

I gave in to him a lot, but I was one of the lucky ones who didn't get pregnant. Donny would come and get me, and after he got what he wanted, he'd bring me home and take off to be with his friends. Abby, I never said no to him because I loved him a lot and still do, but he always was in a hurry to get away from me.

He treats me just great when we're together, but when I'm up to his house with his sister, he ignores me. I want to know what Donny really thinks of me, but he won't commit himself. I have told him I loved him several times, but he never told me that. How can I get Donny back, Abby? NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I don't think you can get Donny "back" because you never really had him—for any longer than it took him to "get what he wanted" before taking off. He used you, dear. Now, be a wise girl and make up your mind to forget him. And never let another boy use you again—or you can expect one rejection after another.

DEAR ABBY: Recently our daughter was married to a young Californian. His parents came for the wedding and stayed at our home.

As is the custom, the groom's father hosted a dinner party the evening before the wedding. But being unfamiliar with Milwaukee restaurants, he asked us to make the dinner reservations for him, so we selected a famous German restaurant. When the check was presented to the host, we were embarrassed to find that the waitress had added a $25 "tip" for herself. When we questioned the practice, she said it was customary for parties of more than 10 people.

It was a very awkward situation for all of us, and we felt especially embarrassed because we had made the reservation.

Have you (or anyone else) ever heard of such a custom? BRIDE'S PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Some clubs, hotels and restaurants routinely add "gratuities" to the bill for special services (group dinners, etc.). But when a waitress specified her tip on her own, I would ask for the management's confirmation—and schnell!

DEAR ABBY: I am married and the mother of six. My problem is dogs—seven of them! I like dogs, but not enough to let seven of them live in the same house with me. I can't get my husband to put them outside.

I can't keep my floors clean, and company will not come to my house because the dog odors are so strong.

Abby, those dogs even get up on my beds. I am just about nuts from those dogs, but my husband won't cooperate.

What should I do?

DOG PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: You have a HUSBAND problem—not a DOG problem. Even a dirty dog deserves a decent place to live, whether it's inside or out, but seven dogs sounds like six too many to me. Set up a howl!

CONFIDENTIAL TO L. S. IN BRENTWOOD. I don't know whether they don't want to quit smoking or can't, but three people whose smoking bothers me the most are Johnny Carson, Jerry Lewis and Sammy Davis Jr. Why? Because they are among the most talented entertainers of our time. I would like to see them around for a long, long time—and smoking reduces their chances.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Clothing Care ALERT!

Clothing Care Requires Know-How

You can learn something about removing stains on clothes from professional cleaners. Removing stains is a science for them, and they call on special techniques and equipment to deal with different types of stains. You can apply some of their techniques to remove stains from your clothes at home.

Professional cleaners still base their cleaning procedures on whether a stain will dissolve in a drycleaning fluid or in water and detergent.

The International Fabricare Institute (IFI), an association of about 10,000 professional drycleaners and laundries, recommends two different spot-removing agents for the two different types of stains when you try removing spots from clothes at home.

S soap and water is best for stains that dissolve in water, including stains from most foods and drinks, grass, urine and washable inks.

Cleaning fluids and powders work best on oily, greasy or waxy stains—including makeup, ball-point pen ink and printing inks, carbon paper, cooking oil and grease, candle wax, crayons and salad oil. Both liquid and powdered spot removers contain drycleaning solvents. In the powdered spot removers, solvents draw the stain from the fabric so the powder can absorb the stain.

If you're not sure whether the stain will dissolve in water or in cleaning fluid, you may damage the fabric by using the wrong method. For example, some inks can be removed with water, but water actually sets some ball-point pen ink. When you are unsure what method to use have a professional cleaner remove the stain.

The home method works best on fabric that isn't fragile or highly sized. Satins, furs, suede and vinyl all require professional care. Check care labels. Although labels don't give spot removal information, they can give you clues. Don't use cleaning fluid on clothing labeled "Do Not Dryclean."

Be careful about using water on clothes labeled "Dry-clean Only." Whether you attempt to remove the stain yourself or entrust the job to a professional cleaner, act quickly. Stains are harder to remove the longer they have set. Stains take time to remove though, so be patient and work the stains out slowly when attempting home cleaning methods. If you have any doubt about the best way to remove a spot, don't take a chance on ruining your clothing...ask your professional cleaner.

Autumn in the Rockies

By Dale Callingham
Splendor knows no season in the Canadian Rockies. Winter, spring, summer, fall — they all have their own charm, offering scenery and activities.

Autumn in the Rockies is particularly enjoyable. Summer crowds have gone back to the cities leaving behind a peaceful and beautiful land. Crisp greenery turns a soft, shimmering gold in the lower mountain regions, and wildlife comes into view more frequently. The chances of spotting deer, elk or black bears are excellent.

In Waterton Lakes National Park, in southern Alberta, the mountains glow red, purple and gold due to ore deposits, and crystal-clear waterfalls and lakes sparkle in the landscape.

For a change of scene from all this natural beauty, there are nearby attractions. At Lethbridge, there is Nikka Yuko, one of the largest Japanese gardens in North America, and Fort Whoop-up which is a replica, as the name might suggest, of a major whiskey-trading fort of the 1870's.

There is also Fort Macleod which marks the end of the westward trek of the North West Mounted Police in 1884.

For Macleod is a treasury of historical material including the Macleod Hotel house rules from September 1, 1882: "All guests are requested to rise at 6 a.m. This is imperative as the sheets are needed for tablecloths." "Assaults on the cook are strictly prohibited" and... "Boarders who get killed will not be allowed to remain in the house".

Further north, in the heart of the Canadian Rockies, is Banff, Canada's oldest national park, now consisting of 2,564 square miles.

Banff National Park is an open invitation to hikers, horseback riders, photographers, artists campers and nature lovers in general. If you're a little more sedentary, enjoy the view from your car or try the gondola lift up Sulphur Mountain which operates until November 6 this year.

Or, you can glide up Mount Norquay on a cablecar or open chair. Just about a metre above the ground, the 998 metre long (3,244-foot) cablecar lift rises a vertical distance of more than 396 m (1,300 feet), and brings you safely and comfortably to the 2,135 m (7,000-foot) level in only seven minutes.

At the top you can lunch at the Cliffhouse or, if you bring your own lunch, at one of the many picnic tables. If you're not hungry, just feast on the beautiful panorama and fresh air. This is great picture-taking country and, because it's off-season, you needn't worry about unwanted subjects darting into your viewfinder.

The cablecars operate through September, although they may close for the day if the weather is bad.

A drive north along the stunningly beautiful Icefield Parkway to Jasper will take you through the famous Columbia Icefield. Along the way you'll see the enormous Athabasca Glacier, first discovered by wilderness explorers in 1888 and now one of the most studied glaciers in the world, mainly because of its accessibility.

Signs warn tourists to stay off the ice unless registered at one of the self-registration stations or with a park warden. However, you can get onto the ice cheaply and safely by taking a snowmobile tour, a concept unique to Canada.

The glacier is eight km long (five miles) and one km (.75 miles) wide. The snowmobiles take visitors to its mid-point where they can get out briefly, take pictures (even down dangerous mill-wells where meltwater swirls down shafts to the depths of the ice) and absorb the majesty of the icefalls and mountains.

The eighteen 10-seater snowmobiles and a 28-seater, as well as a bus converted to a tracked vehicle, run every day until mid-September no matter what the weather condition.

Another popular fall activity in the Rockies is hiking, short trips for the novice and longer backpacking treks for the more experienced.

Picture yourself hiking up a mountain trail with a cooling breeze at your back, while carpets of pine rustle below you and sheltered lakes glisten.

Everything, save the breeze through the trees and perhaps a foraging squirrel, is quiet, and all you have to do is breathe that cool mountain air to know this is what hiking is really all about.

Although the Rockies cannot boast the scarlet and gold fall foliage of Canada's central and eastern provinces, they do have their own color. Cold, clear, turquoise lakes and rivers sparkle through gold valley larch, and soaring, white, snow-capped mountain peaks halo rustling evergreens. The clash of green pines and gold larch and aspen, carpeted with red undergrowth and shrubbery, makes Rocky fall foliage distinctively beautiful.

Camping is another natural for the fall. You have a wider choice of campsites due to the absence of summer crowds and that quiet solitude every camper looks for is right outside your tent flap, to say nothing of the exquisite scenery. Have you ever noticed how much better coffee and fried eggs taste on a crisp, quiet fall morning just before an invigorating walk through the woods?

The colorful scenery of the Rockies of today reflects an equally colorful past, displayed and explained for you at numerous sites and museums.

Plaques and cairns are sprinkled throughout the Rockies explaining the significance of specific spots and of course these are visible year-round.

The signs pointing out the Frank Slide disaster of 1903 is perhaps the saddest commemoration. At 4:10 a.m., while the town of Frank slept, 90 million tons of rock thundered down over the valley, destroying part of the town, claiming 70 lives, and burying an entire mine plant and railway, all within 100 seconds.

There are also numerous museums in the Rockies, most of which are open in the fall and many of which are free.

The list of fall activities in the Canadian Rockies is almost endless. The best thing to do is go and see for yourself. The quiet majesty of the autumn Rockies won't disappoint you.

Tossed tarts just one small pitfall

TORONTO (CP) — The story goes that one woman who entered the baking contest held about 15 years ago at the Canadian National Exhibition was so irate when her butter tarts didn't win a prize that she tossed them at the judges.

That's just one of the bits of nostalgia told by Peggy Haslem, contest co-ordinator for the CNE women's division which continues to draw hundreds of entries each year from Canadians with a talent for creating handicrafts.

The handicraft and baking exhibits are displayed in the exhibition's Better Living Building. This year—the CNE's centennial—the staff of the women's division has been hard at work to recreate some of the past glories.

For instance, there is an 85-year-old quilt which won the top award at the CNE in 1914. It was hand-quilted by the late Mrs. Hannah Moscrop of Toronto. Her daughter-in-law offered it to this year's exhibit and it hangs alongside two of this year's award-winners.

Entries have come in from the United States and Scotland, Mrs. Haslem said in an interview prior to the opening, "and a surprising number of men have won prizes in needlepoint this year."

Judges in all the categories are hand-picked for their expertise in a particular field, said Mrs.

Haslem.
JUDGE FOOD SECTIONS
In the cooking and baking sections, magazine food editors and home economists from large Canadian food companies will judge the competition Aug. 29.

The CNE has attracted as many as 5,000 craft entries in a year and last year had 2,300.

The food entries now are judged and sent home with their owners on the same day. At one time, they were displayed in glass cases even though it was August and there was no refrigeration.

Prize money is nominal and it hardly has changed since 1905 when prizes were $2 and $5. By the 1940s awards were $6 and this year there are a few $20 and $25 prizes in the handicraft categories, but most range from $6 to $10.

Also to mark the centennial there will be 12 centennial rooms to show how Canadians decorated their homes from 1870 to 1978.

There also are 15 contemporary rooms on display showing the latest design, furnishings and accessories all of which are available to Canadian consumers.

Also to celebrate the centennial, the women's division is holding a fashion showcase covering 100 years of fashion for children and women.

The CNE opens today and runs until Sept. 4 at Exhibition Place. n
